

THREE CONFESS PART IN WAR THAT KILLED CHILDREN

Men Captured by Detectives in Garfield, N. J., After Lodi Tip.

GIRL OF NINE DIES.
Her Death Follows That of Fourteen-Year-Old Boy in Bellevue.

Three men, who admit having taken part in the pistol attack on East Tenth street on Monday night which resulted in the shooting of Teresa Bierbauer and Vincenzo Mazzarella, two children who were playing in the street at the time, were arrested in Garfield, N. J., today by two detectives from New York Headquarters.

Since the fourteen-year-old Mazzarella boy died on Tuesday and nine-year-old Teresa Bierbauer died in Bellevue Hospital yesterday while the physicians were operating on her, a charge of murder was lodged against the three when they were arraigned before Recorder Kerr of Lodi.

The three arrested, all admitting residence in New York, were Joseph Lapanto of No. 440 East Thirteenth street, Charles Pastenno of No. 200 First avenue and Thomas Lynch of No. 506 East Fifteenth street. The latter is believed by the police to have given a false name, since he, like the other two, is an Italian.

The three men put up a fight when Detectives Dondoro and Grattano of New York Headquarters found them together in Garfield. They were handcuffed at the points of the detectives' guns. When they appeared before the Recorder for arraignment they waived examination and returned to New York with their captors.

The Lodi police told the Headquarters men that Lapanto used to live in Lodi and had a bad reputation with the police there. When they heard yesterday from New York Headquarters that men answering the description of Lapanto and the other two arrested today were wanted in connection with the gang fight on Monday night they looked up Lapanto's old haunts and discovered him.

The man whom Headquarters detectives picked up in New York late Tuesday night, Herman Linde of No. 151 Avenue C, though at first thought to have been one of the men implicated in the running pistol fight because of fresh wounds in his neck and hand, seems to have cleared himself with the police. He maintained that he had been assaulted with a meat hook, thereby receiving the wounds which led the police to suspect him.

HARRIMAN RAISED $250,000, BUT T. R. DIDN'T KNOW IT

Sheldon about the 1904 campaign instead of the 1909 fight.

"Do you know of any contribution in 1904 by any one connected with the United States Steel Corporation?" inquired Mr. Clapp.

"It is difficult to answer that; not to my personal knowledge," replied Mr. Sheldon. He gave similar answers to questions about the "Robinson trust," the "Harvester trust," the "Sugar trust," Standard Oil, the American Protective Tariff League, and various manufacturers' associations.

"It was when Senator Clapp asked Mr. Sheldon for his recollection of contributions above $5,000 in 1904 that the witness mentioned J. P. Morgan & Co. and Henry C. Frick. He was unable to say definitely what others contributed to the campaigns of 1898, 1900, 1904 and 1908.

"How do you happen to remember that these two contributed in 1904?" "Because they told me so."

"Who told you, Mr. Morgan?" "Mr. Morgan of his firm, and Mr. Frick personally."

Mr. Sheldon referred to his books and said the contributors to the National Committee in 1908 amounted to $1,055,578.

The Senate Committee had been trying to get ex-Gov. Odell of New York to testify about the Harriman contribution. He may appear later. The committee has not taken up the question of asking Col. Roosevelt to testify.

Mr. Sheldon was evasive to-day with the understanding that he might be recalled after the committee had examined the books. Chairman Clapp said no definite announcement could be made as to who would be the next witness.

WALL STREET.

General Electric stock proved the freak of the market today. This issue, after a strong opening, weakened, and throughout the morning and early afternoon kept bobbing up and down like a cork on a stormy ocean. It opened with a gain of one and a quarter points, and during the first ten minutes of trading had soared to a lead of three and a quarter points. At noon it had lost its large margin and fallen to a point and three-quarters below yesterday's close.

The general tone of the market became weak toward noon.

In the closing hour there was a strong upward movement, and the leading issues went up gradually, closing with substantial gains over yesterday. Steel common rose above the 90 mark and the railroad stocks in general shared in the increase.

DESERTS BABY IN CHURCH.

Woman Worships Finds Infant

In Pew in Hoboken.

A woman parishioner of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, Willow avenue and Fourth street, Hoboken, N. J., rose from her worship last Sunday and started to leave the church when she heard the cry of an infant a few feet from her. She found in a pew a pretty-dressed baby girl, apparently about three months old. The child was dressed in white and had blue eyes and fair hair. The infant was taken in charge by the Rev. Father Eugene Carroll, pastor of the church, who placed it in St. Mary's orphanage and notified the Hoboken police.

EAST SIDE GANGS HOLD UP AND ROB THREE IN STREET

Set Upon by Highwaymen, Citizens Lose Valuables and Police Make Arrests.

Another indication of the spread of the lawless gang spirit on the east side was given to the police last night by two separate instances of robbery and assault by youthful gangsters. In both instances, however, the police showed unusual celerity and arrested two men.

Samuel Spurling, a machinist, of No. 20 Madison street, was walking with a friend, Max Zebobolski of No. 120 Second street, along Clinton street about 8:30 o'clock last night. Spurling had just received a new gold watch for his birthday, and as he was very proud of it he was showing it to his friend, not noticing that the sight of the handsome case and its chain had attracted the attention of a number of young loafers on the curb. Spurling and Zebobolski walked along, chatting together, until they reached the corner of Livingston street, when suddenly they found themselves surrounded by a group of tough-looking youths.

They tried to push their way out, but they were allowed and jostled back, and when they protested fists were raised and threats made. The climax came when Spurling felt a tug at his watch chain, and looked down to see his watch and chain disappear in a grimy flat. This was too much, and calling on his friend, he jumped on the thief and tried to pummel him. The gangsters immediately closed in, upset their two victims and hurried them into the middle of the street, where they kicked them into an insensible condition, and then ran off.

As soon as Spurling and Zebobolski came to their senses they walked over to the Clinton street police station, a block away, told their story to the lieutenant on duty and asked for assistance. The lieutenant assigned Detectives De Cailland and Landers to the case, and the four set out on a quest for the gangsters.

They walked through the neighboring streets until nearly midnight, and finally at the corner of Essex and Livingston streets Spurling picked out Max Levine, nineteen years old, a driver of No. 37 Dumont avenue, Brooklyn, and Charles Levine, twenty years old, of No. 100 Brook avenue, the Bronx, as the leaders of the gang that had robbed and beaten him and his friend.

Levine, who has served a term in the House of Refuge, he afterward positively identified as the man who had stolen the watch. The two will be arraigned in Essex Market Court today.

About the same time this incident occurred, another gang of still more youthful desperadoes held up William Goldberg, a salesman of No. 518 East One hundred and Thirty-ninth street, as he was crossing Tompkins Square Park, and by the use of the same hustling tactics, succeeded in getting his diamond-studded fountain pen, and were only prevented from stripping a diamond ring off his finger by the arrival of Patrolman Kutner of the Fifth street station, who ran up in response to Goldberg's frantic calls for help.

The salesman had put up something of a fight on his own account, though, and managed to hold on to one man until the policeman came.

This captive was taken to the station, where he said he was Louis Graff, fifteen years old, an errand boy of No. 81 Lewis street. According to the police he is seventeen years old. On Goldberg's complaint he was held for arraignment in Essex Market Court today.
